Contribution to Teaching

Taught/Teaching Financial Accounting, Rutgers Overseas Executive MBA Program, Shanghai, China; Financial Statement Analysis, Rutgers Overseas Executive MBA Program, Singapore, Beijing and Shanghai, China; Financial Accounting and Financial Statement Analysis, Rutgers Executive MBA Program, U.S.A.

Teaching both Accounting and Finance classes including advanced electives at Rutgers Business School, Rutgers University.

Introduced (jointly with Professor Joe Rebovich at NYU) a new course titled "Strategic Business Planning and Taxes" at the MBA level, Spring 1994.

Rated highly by students for Finance and Accounting classes taught at Rutgers for the years 2000-2005. Noteworthy is the outstanding student response for a new course on Financial Statement Analysis/Decoding of Corporate Financial Statements/Managerial Problems in Financial Reporting at Rutgers. Averaged consistently over 6.0 out of 7.0 at the Stern School, New York University; rated very highly by the students in the Financial Statement Analysis course taught at Columbia University during 1998-2000 (the Dean added an extra section due to excess student demand); received 6.8 out of 7 (Summer 1997) for teaching the core Financial Accounting class at the Graduate School of Business, Columbia University; and commended for teaching excellence in Fall 1994 by the Kellogg Graduate School of Management, Northwestern University.
